- 3 (a) Read the text below and then answer the questions that follow.

“Good evening, ladies and gentlemen and welcome to this session. Today, I’m going to talk about the science of success. In order to become successful, the one thing we need above all else is self-discipline. How little attention most of us give to that great subject!”

“I want to tell you something: I want to suggest to you in the beginning of this talk that in order to make the greatest use of self-discipline, you’ve got to have a system to go by. You’ve got to have a plan. You’ve got to keep your mind occupied at all times with all the things and all the circumstances and all the desires of your choice, and strictly off the things that you don’t want.”

“Here’s self-discipline in its highest order: keeping your mind fixed on the things you do want in life, and off the things you don’t want.”
